

What is film?

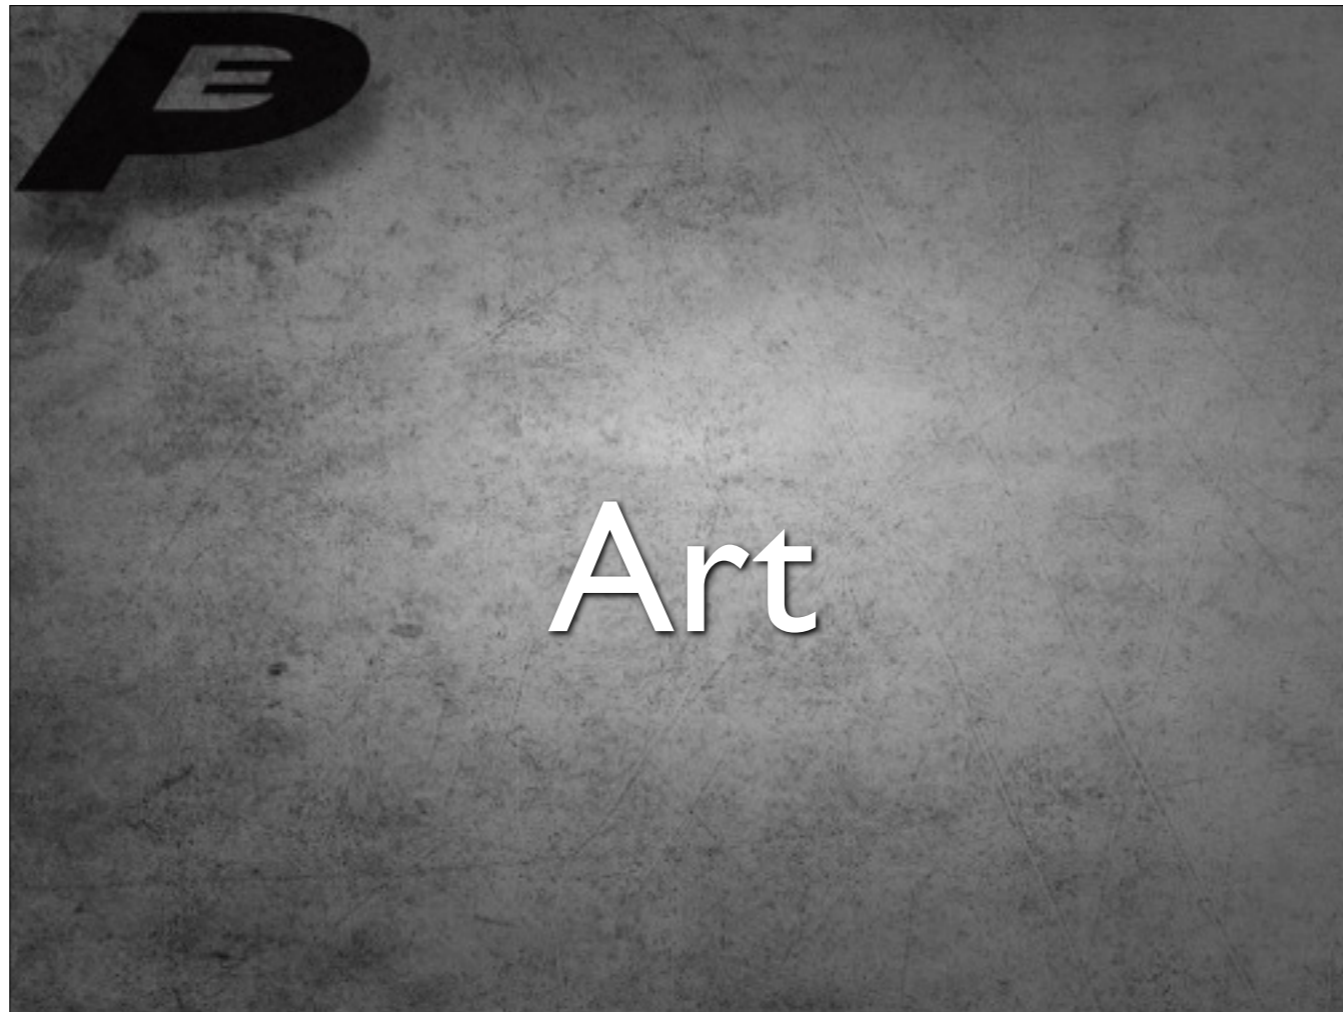

... the product or process of deliberately arranging symbolic elements in a way that influences and affects one or more of the senses, emotions, and intellect...

... the product or process of deliberately arranging symbolic elements in a way that influences and affects one or more of the senses, emotions, and intellect...

... the product or process of deliberately arranging symbolic elements in a way that influences and affects one or more of the senses, emotions, and intellect...

... the product or process of deliberately arranging symbolic elements in a way that influences and affects one or more of the senses, emotions, and intellect...

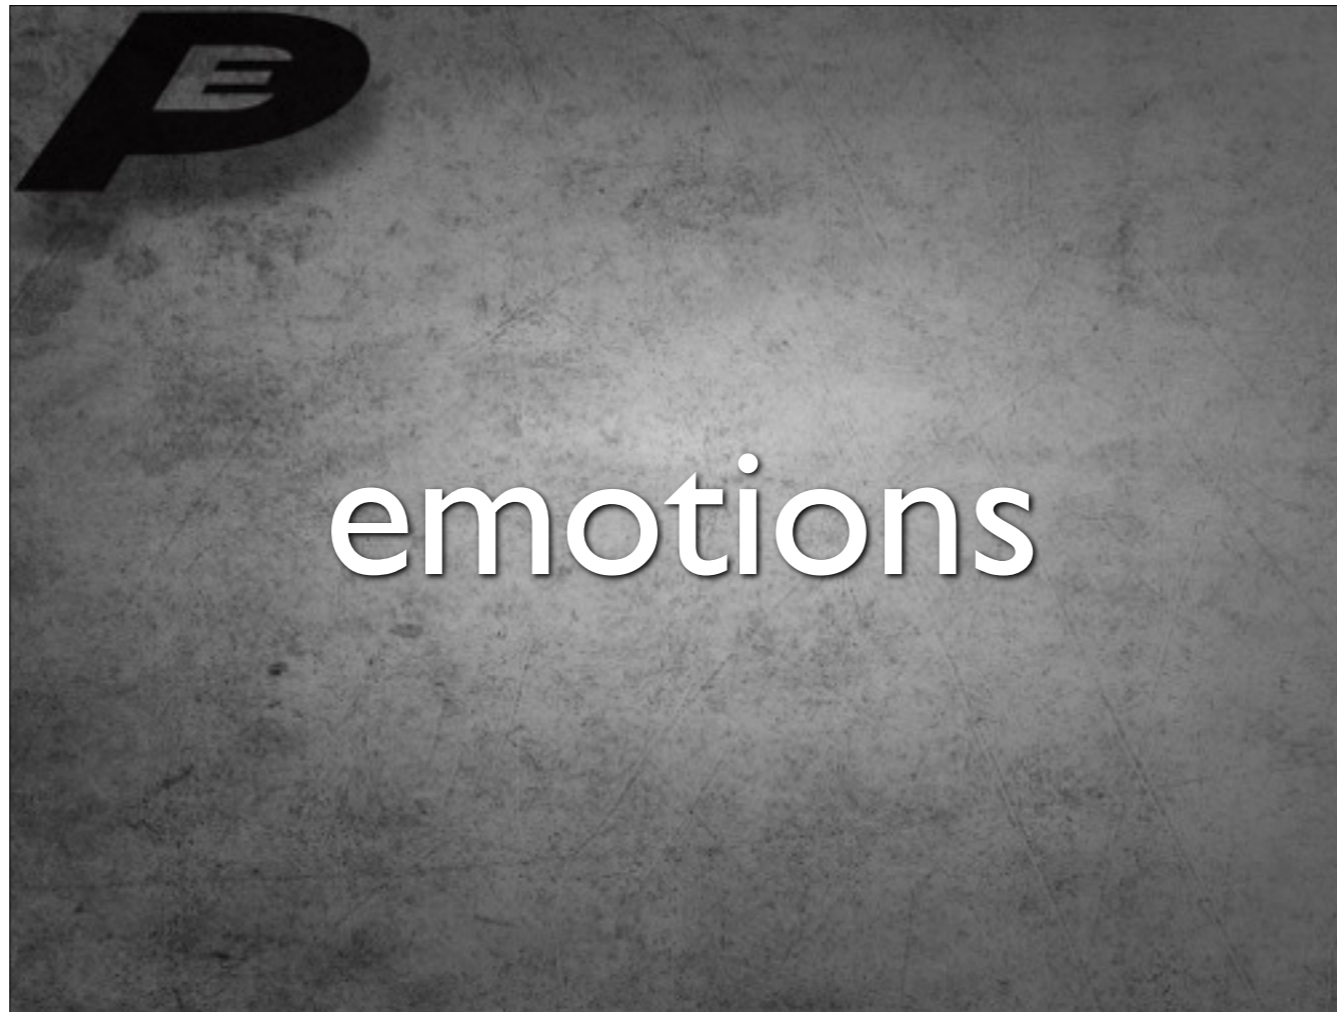

Art

“... the product or process of deliberately arranging symbolic elements in a way that influences and affects one or more of the senses, emotions, and intellect...”

emotions have you ever “felt” something in a movie? Anger with a great antagonist. Drama? Excited?

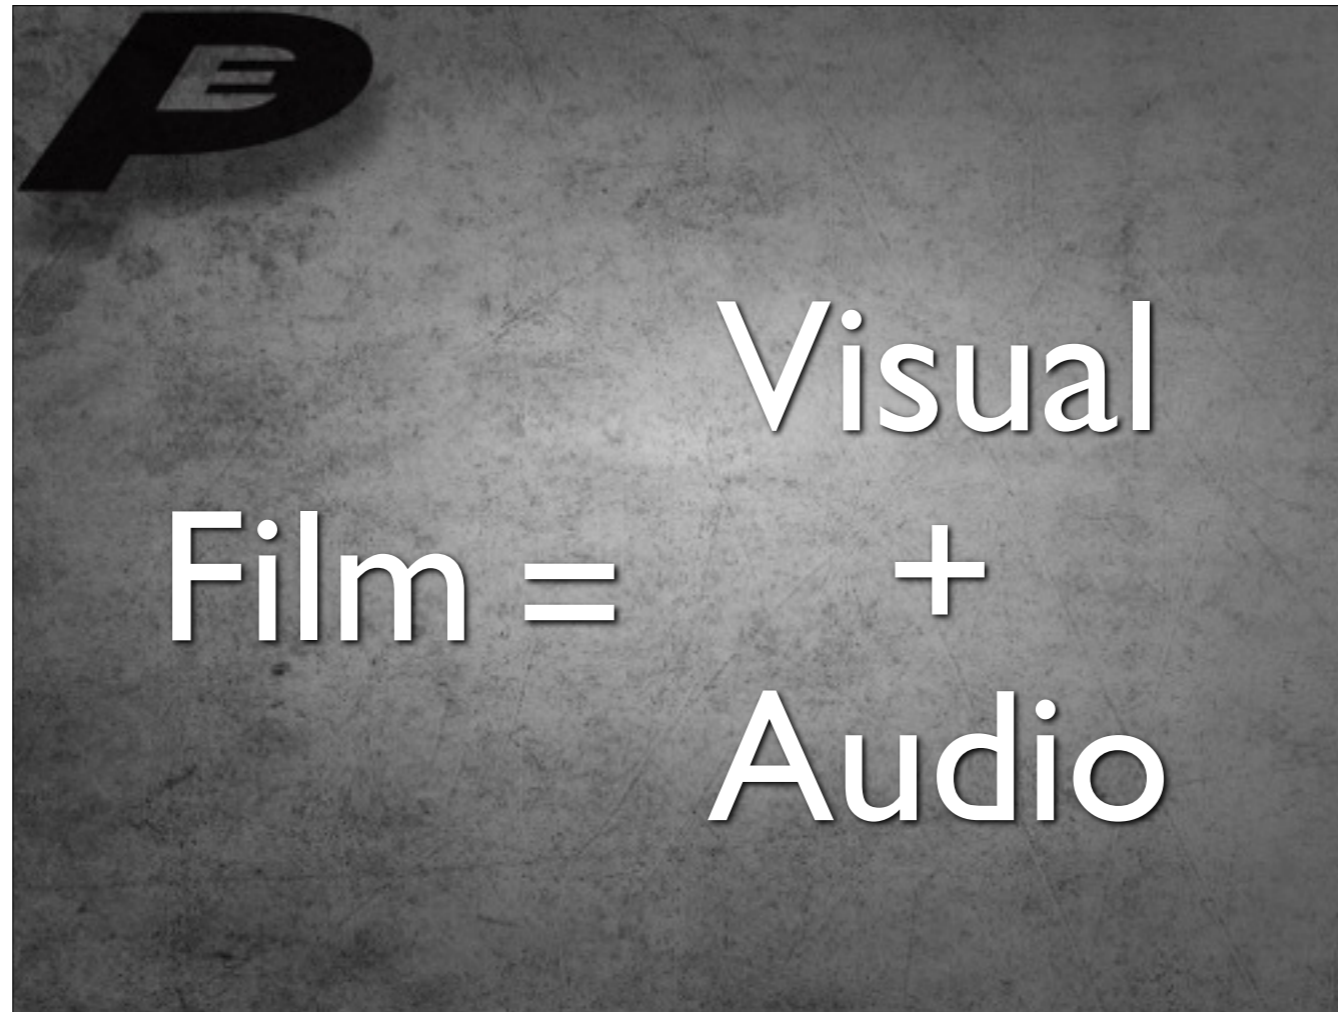

Connecting with a movie is everything. you feel the adrenaline, you feel frustrated.

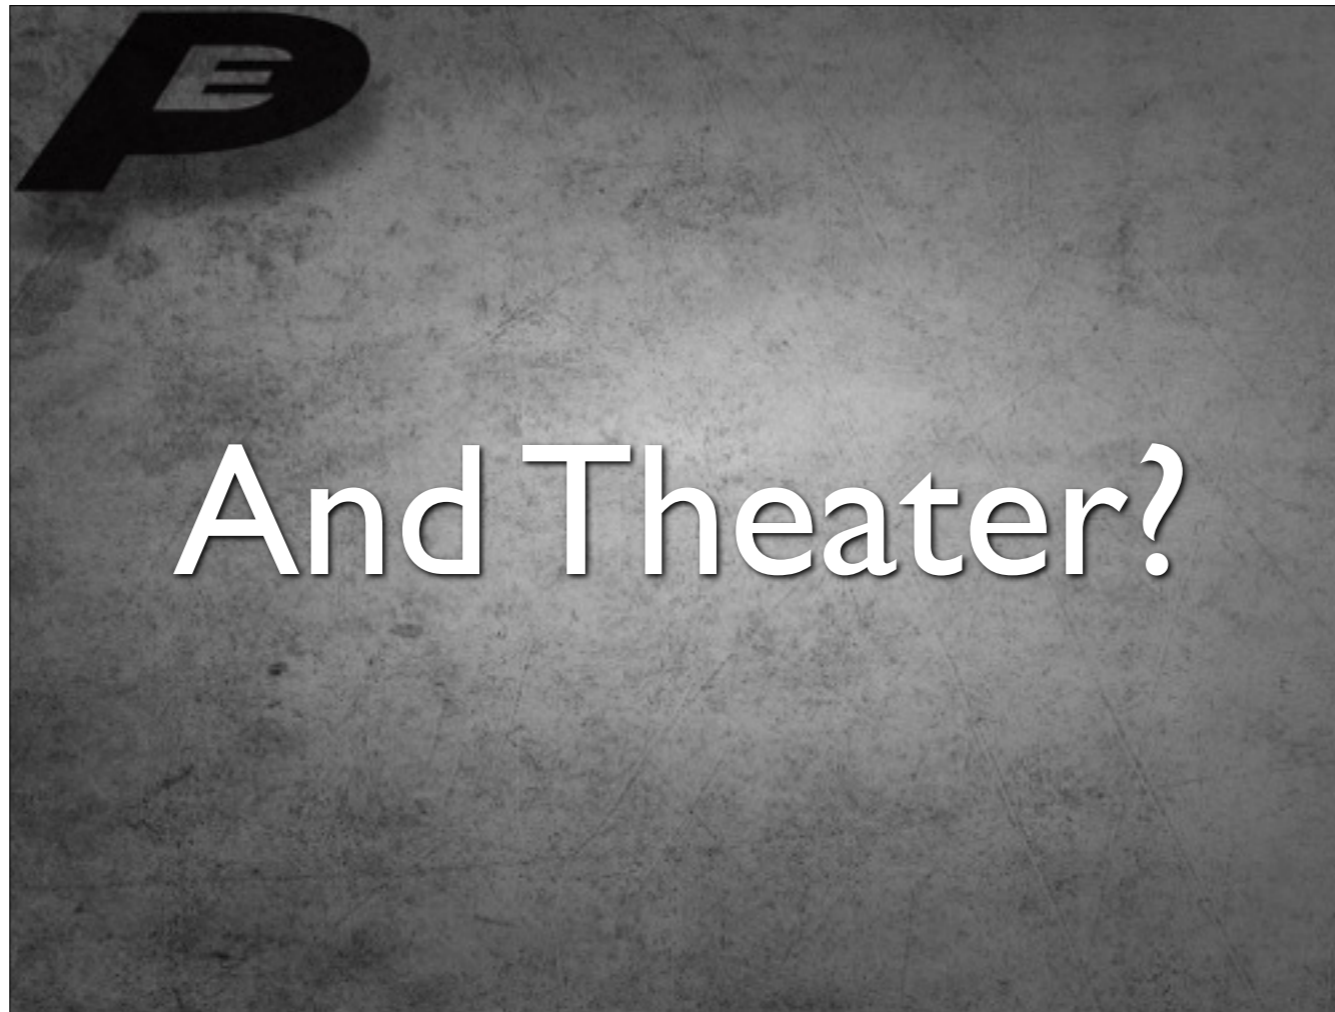

Visual = images in movements - 24 frames per second

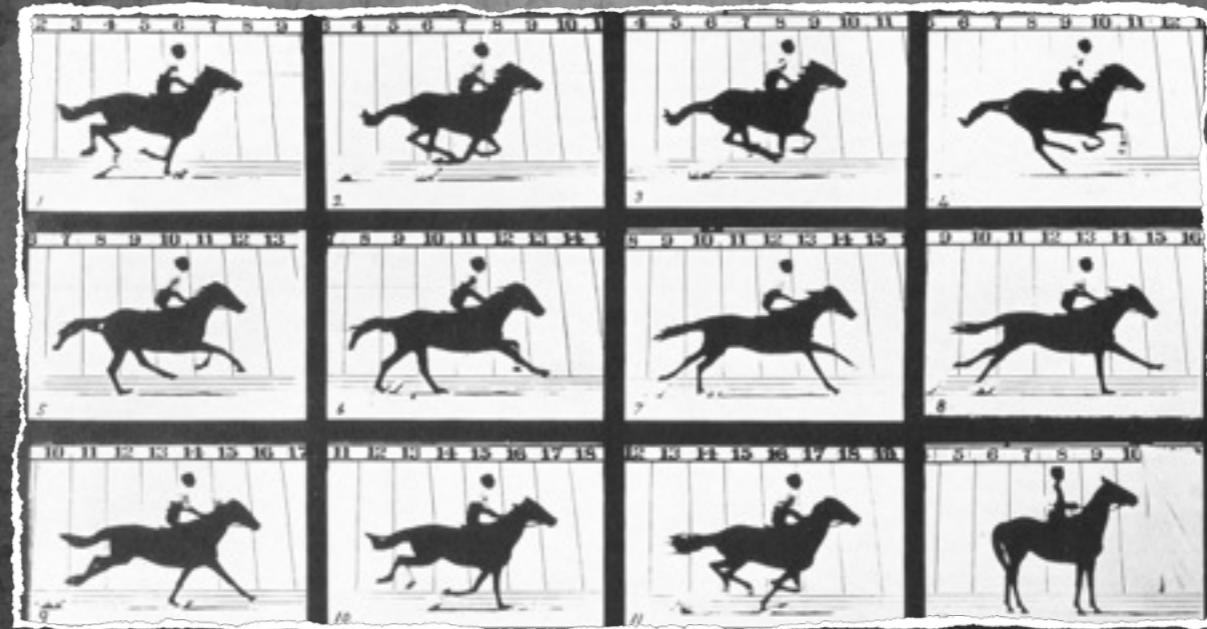

Visual = images in movements - 24 frames per second

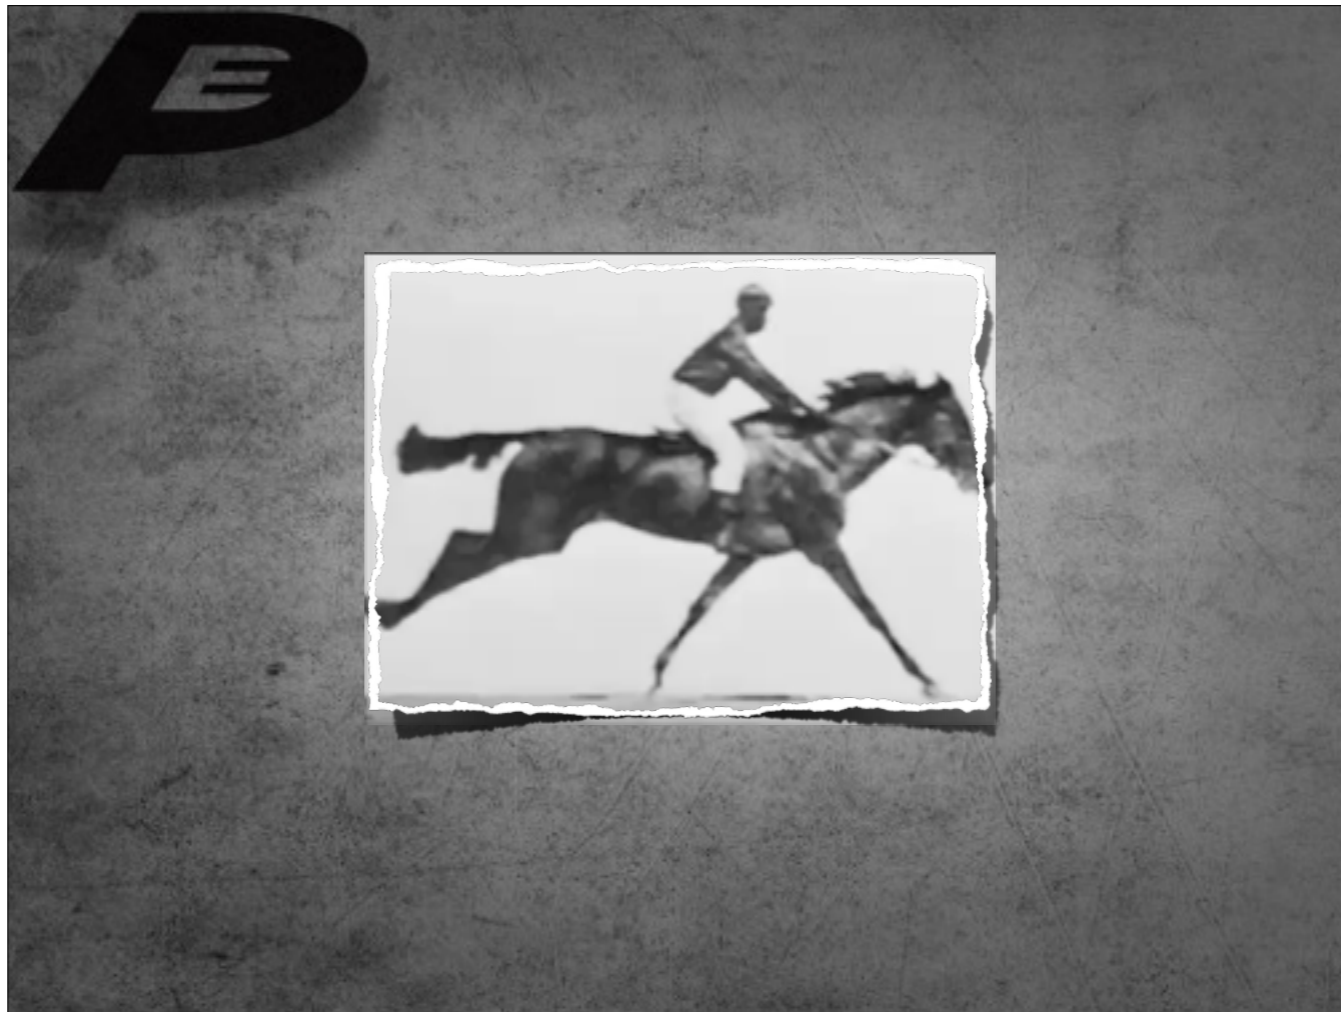

Ok, Drama offers the same but film have a plus, you, filmmakers have the full control. You can transport your audience to distant lands or even better, to the minds of your characters.

“An image is worth a thousand words”

24 frames per second.

24 frames per second.